

END OF THE BIN

First Annual Edible East End Sign Contest

Quirky, creative, and sometimes puzzling, the signs that farmers cobble together to advertise their latest offerings are often as enticing as the offerings themselves. In comparison to the East End's sterile and ubiquitous real estate signs, these solicitations are a welcome addition to the landscape. The 20 signs in this collage were all photographed on the North and South Forks in the last few weeks. We hope you recognize some of them. The person who can identify the most—by location or farm—will win a free subscription to Edible East End. (Ties will be settled by random drawing.)
